CONTACT

516-374-0074

dkaminetzky@defactoprojectmanagement.com

SUGGESTED TOPICS

- How a Risk Register Helps With Visualization & Anxiety
- Top 10 Things You Can Do With a Law Degree
- Why Attorneys Should Be Great at Being AI Prompt Engineers
- Top 10 Ways to Use Project Management IRL
- Why We Should Welcome New Technology No Matter How Old We Are
- Managing People Without Authority Over Them

© 2025 Deborah Kaminetzky

DEBORAH KAMINETZKY

PROJECT MANAGER

BIO

Deborah Kaminetzky is a Fractional Project Manager and COO having pivoted from practicing law in 2019. After putting her law practice on a shelf to pursue a dream of working in technology in Seattle she returned to New York and obtained certifications in three different project methodologies. Deborah has managed hundreds of projects and teams. She has been a frequent speaker at many organizations and has a knack for making seemingly dry topics engaging and fun! She has spoken for various bar associations and non-profits on technology topics, risk management and operations and her combination of skills, experience and teaching methods not only entertain the listener but give them actionable knowledge that they can put into practice right away.

INTERVIEW QUESTIONS

1. What made you want to pivot to technology project management?
2. What was the biggest difference in getting certifications after 50 than when you were 20?
3. Of all the project management principles which do you use the most and why?
4. What are some of your favorite projects and why?
5. How did you realize you had transferable skills and how did you convey that to hiring managers?
6. What are the top 5 things you consider before you agree to take on a project?
7. How do you handle communications with complex stakeholders?
8. How did you figure out that risk management and anxiety are related?